

LEAN & SIX SIGMA GREEN BELT TRAINING

Overview

With ever-increasing customer expectations, it is critical to take a structured approach to business performance analysis and the application of effective cost and performance techniques to achieve success.

Based on Lockheed Martin's tradition of process excellence and continuous process improvement, teamed with Rutgers University's long standing reputation for educational excellence, we proudly introduce this innovative learning combination of Lean process philosophy and Six Sigma quality tools presented in a blended-learning format of live classroom instruction with best-in-class computer-based training courses.

This innovative curriculum, representative of a week-long Kaizen event, is based on Lockheed Martin Corporation's award-winning internal training program, is offered exclusively to the public through Rutgers School of Business.

Participants, gain in-demand skills and boost your value to your organization.

Organizations, build your team's ability to reduce waste, improve profitability and better satisfy your customers.
